

Toledo Official Urges Police To Keep Up War Against Crime

James J. Meyer Principal Speaker at Annual Banquet of Marion County Lodge.

More than 100 Marion business and professional men, associate members of Marion county lodge, Fraternal Order of Police, joined active members of the city police force and members of the highway patrol in the lodge's annual banquet Wednesday night.

James J. Meyer, principal speaker, included Lt. S. D. Augenstein of the highway patrol; Police William E. Marks; H. L. Dowling; Maurice J. Schaefer, safety director of Toledo; and the principal addresser of the evening, James J. Meyer, president of the Marion lodge; Bob McEachern, master of ceremonies; Capt. William Murphy of the police department; and the Cleveland office of the FBI; William Calhoun, assistant chief of the Toledo department.

The program was arranged by the Toledo lodge of the social committee, by C. H. Harding and L. J. Spickard. Invocation was made by Rev. William J. Spickard, pastor of St. Mary's church; benediction was given by Rev. Henry Schaefer, pastor of St. Paul's English Lutheran church.

In the main address of the evening, Maurice J. Meyer emphasized that the policeman should be an active member of his community. He should join civic organizations, be active in clubs, and have particular interest in the activities of a policeman.

should be alert, neat, at ease and courteous. Meyer said, since he often is the first contact a stranger has with a community and deals almost exclusively with people who are in some kind of difficulty, whether or not it is their fault. Meyer said he would always remember Marion because of the helpfulness of a policeman he met 33 years ago, who lent him 25 cents when he was low in funds to enable him to buy a train ticket. Finally he told the assembled law enforcement agents to "keep the lid down," to prepare their cases when they go into court, and to be unrelenting of their enforcement of the law against criminals, vice-mongers, and racketeers.

Introductions and running comments on the proceedings were made by toastmaster Bob Hall, who spoke extemporaneously and in rhyme. He summarized Meyer's talk in rhyme and kept the program moving at a rapid pace with his continual "ribbing" of the speakers and audience. He gave a demonstration of "double talk," which he said originated in Detroit 25 years ago and which was called at that time "undisclosed conversation."

IRANIAN PEACE TALKS BELIEVED IN SESSION

By The Associated Press
TEHRAN, April 11.—Developments in Tehran indicated today that Iranian and Iranian central government might be conferring somewhere in the mountains near Karaj in the first step toward re-establishing Iran's national unity.

The developments were:

1. A cabinet member told reporters that Azerbaijan—where a self-proclaimed autonomous government has been established—had selected a "peace delegation" at a special two-day session of parliament which ended yesterday at Tabriz.
2. An influential Kurdish landowner from near Saubulagh (Mehabad)—capital of the so-called "Independent Kurdish Republic"—said he had acted as intermediary between the central government and Ghazi Mohammad, head of the Iranian Kurds and deputy chief of state for "Greater Kurdistan." He said the Kurds were asked to send representatives to a meeting "near Karaj" this week.
3. Prince Mozaffar Firouz, director of propaganda for the central government, said he might hold a press conference in a "day or two."
4. A British parliamentary delegation which had planned to leave Iran yesterday, suddenly postponed its return to London and an embassy official said the mem-

5-Year-Old Girl Can't Read, So She Is Given Court Job

Associated Press Newsfeatures.
COLUMBIA, S. C. — Five-year-old Ann McEachern of Columbia is a veteran court attaché despite her tender years.

For two years, she has had the job of drawing jurors' names when juries are selected in the circuit courts for Richland county.

She gets $2 a day when court is in session.

When not actually busy with her duties, Ann just sits quietly and watches proceedings with much curiosity.

Ann got her job when her predecessor reached the mature age of six and had to go to school.

Children are picked for the job because state law prescribes that it must be given to a person who cannot read.

Beauty through Science

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

BY ADELE GARRISON

"WHAT do you mean?" I asked Katharine, startled.

"Exactly what I say," she replied. "Don't do any worrying over Mary at this luncheon. Extend any spare sympathy to Olina."

And this, I told myself, was from the woman to whom I had looked for some wise suggestion as to Mary's dealing with the difficult luncheon situation which Olina was planning!

"But," I began, that's just it! I don't want Mary to do anything crude or drastic at this luncheon. And I certainly don't want Noel to realize what Olina is trying to do."

"It mightn't be such a bad thing for him, at that," Katharine said, and in her voice there was distinct disapproval of Noel's attitude toward Mary's occasional frivolity.

"But I don't think either Noel or Roderick is going to be much disturbed," she said. "You know Mary. She couldn't be crude if she tried, but she can be Machiavellian to the fifth degree."

"I agree with you," she went on.

"That it wouldn't have been so hot for Mary if Olina—bless her heart!—hadn't warned you about the thing. But Mary now knows just what is going to happen, and you can bet she's cooking up something extra fancy."

Hope She's Right

"I hope you're right," I said. "But you're sure I'm wrong?" Katharine retorted.

"Well, Darling, if I can do or suggest which will help. It's Mary's baby; she'll have to give it its bottle."

There was finally in her voice, and I realized the truth of what she was saying. But I was disappointed, nevertheless, and I think Katharine knew it, for she struck a more flippant note.

"I'm almost sorry I'm not going to be among those present," she said. "That heilloom ring must be something to see. Did you say Georges described the ring to Mary?"

"Yes, he did."

"Did she pass the description on to you?" she queried. "Yes, I'm shamelessly and avidly curious."

Making Talk

I knew that she was simply making talk to ease the disappointment she sensed in me, but I answered her question truthfully.

"No, she didn't," I said. "She gave the excuse that perhaps Georges hadn't described the ring to her, and if so, she would rather I didn't know it until after the luncheon was over."

"A most sensible point," Katharine commented, but Dicky was straggling for speech.

"If Georges gave her a phony description!" he threatened, but Katharine laughed softly.

"What could you do?" she scoffed. "The Chief has Georges safe, and you know he wouldn't let you at him. And you can't take out your spite on poor Olina. She'll get her punishment in plenty if Georges ever comes back and marries her. So all you can do is to possess what passes for your soul in patience."

"Take her away, Jack!" Dicky adjured my kinsman. "She's flouting me!"

Was Going Anyway

"I was going anyway," she said. "We must get back to Faith and our job. Mary probably will float in here before going down to her apartment to get ready for lunch."

"I hope the rest of us won't have to bother you," she said, and Jack bade us good-bye, and walked toward the door. But before she opened it, she turned back with a parting adjuration.

"When you go, come next door and leave your keys," she said. "Then Faith can hold her conferences with Jack in here and leave me free to take any really necessary care of your mother."

"I'll do that," I promised, and then she was gone, and in another minute Mary was framed in the doorway.

"We who are about to die, salute you!" she intoned.

YOUR HEALTH

BY HERMAN BUNDENSEN, M.D.

Baby Toilet Habits

When it comes to baby's toilet training, wise mothers will let well enough alone. They will not attempt training too early nor insist on perfection.

All too many mothers, however, regard the establishing of regular habits as a life-and-death matter. Under the mistaken impression that absolute clock-like regularity of elimination is necessary to health, they begin training early and pursue it rigorously with the result that they often have a rebellious and constipated baby to deal with.

Indeed, many specialists believe that these over-vigorous training habits not only interfere with normal bowel habits, but may also permanently distort the child's personality.

According to Dr. Benjamin Spock of New York, it is very important for mothers to learn the right way of going about this training. It should never be pressed to the point where the child rebels, a particular danger during the second year of life.

Rebellion means conflict and conflict means emotional scars, sometimes of life-long duration. Babies may rebel against the training merely because having a bowel movement is uncomfortable. An infant who has had painful, hard movements on frequent occasions naturally dreads the toilet seat. Thus it is necessary to prevent or cure constipation throughout the first two years of life by regulating the diet.

Another factor to be given consideration is whether or not the infant naturally has bowel movements at a regular time. The baby who always moves his bowels at the same time each day is never a training problem.

Dr. Spock points out that the resistance against training may take three forms: First, the baby resists sitting on the toilet or even going to the bathroom. In severe cases, there may be violent rages and temper tantrums. In another group of cases, the baby may sit on the toilet willingly but nothing happens. The bowel movement occurs immediately after he gets up.

In a third variety the baby will not have a bowel movement either while on the toilet or afterwards. He acquires constipation merely because of his mental attitude.

The retained bowel movement becomes hard within the bowel and then is painful to eliminate. Then the baby has two reasons for failure to have a bowel movement, the hard stool and resistance to the toilet seat.

In the process of training, the baby should be put on the toilet casually and briefly, and only at-

The retained bowel movement becomes hard within the bowel and then is painful to eliminate. Then the baby has two reasons for failure to have a bowel movement, the hard stool and resistance to the toilet seat.

In the process of training, the baby should be put on the toilet casually and briefly, and only atter he can sit up well without help. If the baby does not seem to cooperate, efforts should be relaxed until weeks or months later. Every child will gradually acquire control of the bowel function in the normal way if he is let alone to a great extent. Too much persistence will do more harm than good.

SIX YANK SURVIVORS VISIT ATROCITY SITE

By The Associated Press
FRANKFURT, April 11—Six survivors of the Malmady massacre of nearly 100 American war prisoners returned today to sharpen their memories of the terrible event for testimony they will give at the trial of 75 German S.S. troops accused in the killings.
Grim, tight-lipped, some tearful, they stood in the very field where the Nazis machine-gunned helpless captives taken in the battle of the Bulge.
It was only by luck that the six escaped—some by playing dead.
Stars and Stripes quoted war crimes prosecutors as saying that the visit to Malmady had filled in many valuable details of the massacre which will be unfolded when the trial opens at Dauchau on May 2.
The witnesses identified by the paper included Samuel Dobins, Sandusky, Ohio.

Chemist Says Waste Could Be Food Source

By The Associated Press
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 11—A chemical engineer today suggested utilization of waste food products as food sources to cope with a "shortage" of proteins in the United States.
In declaring there is a shortage of 20,000,000 tons of protein foods available to the nation's people and livestock, Dr. Robert T. Arler, of New Haven, Conn., told the American Chemical society this "could be partly offset by recovering proteins from pulp paper mill wastes."
He told the chemists in a report to their 109th meeting that in addition to 150,000,000 pounds of yeast and cattle fodder which can be produced annually from pulp wastes "a practically inexhaustible amount can be made from sawdust, wood waste and unsalable wood."

It also reported 3,000 members of the Kirin province peace preservation corps broke through Communist lines to reach Changchun after having fought Communist forces along the Changchun-Kirin rail line.

Another semi-official dispatch from Hsien-tsin said that more than 100 Chinese were killed Monday night when Communist forces mined a train near Wanchiatun on the Hsien-tsin-Kirin railway.

Meanwhile, two moves were made here to settle Government-Communist differences.

It also said the provinces in Communist-held areas were half Communist half government. The Democratic League (China) said it parts with Nationalist party Communist approval of a proposal for ending civil strife in Manchuria.

FROST

had not developed far enough to offer heavy damage.

The weather bureau had forecast cloudy weather for the night but in some areas the clouds disappeared and first descended.

The clouds had been depended upon to hold warm air over the earth.

The temperature dropped to low as 19 at Marion, while Youngstown reported 24, Akron 25 and Columbus 30.

Heavy frost was reported also at Canton, Lima and Ashland. The low in Marion was 27 degrees.

The Hartman farm large fruit grove at Columbus reported its grapes were hard hit and peach trees were damaged although smudge pots were kept burning during the night.

Clouds had wind prevented frost on the Cincinnati area, where the temperature dropped to 35.

In the Cleveland area one orchardist reported his sweet cherries were virtually ruined. The damage to apples was not severe. The damage to peaches was not ascertained for a week.

The Bible can be approached scientifically, Dr. S. M. Ingmire said today at Epworth Methodist church.

Dr. Ingmire, who is pastor of Epworth Methodist church, told the Wednesday Noon Bible class in its weekly meeting.

It is a case book on religious experiences and can be approached objectively, he said. He declared that contrary to some opinions expressed upon the subject, it is not always ahead of the theologian.

Iran Case Rated Vital To Future of UN's Prestige

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The opposition which has developed in the United Nations security council to Russia's demand that the Iranian (Persian) issue be dropped from the council's agenda should not in itself be interpreted as an expression of distrust of Moscow.

The Soviet Union's promise to take her troops out of Persia by May 6 isn't being questioned, and it would be useful if this point were emphasized in the council's debate. If Moscow had not agreed with Tehran that all forces should be withdrawn, then Russia's position would indeed have been under challenge.

If the security council itself were asked to define the position, I believe the answer would have to be something like this: The Russo-Persian affair isn't a personal matter between these two countries. Persia is of great strategic importance in the re-alignment of the zones of influence in Europe, the Mediterranean area and the Middle East. Her international relations therefore become a matter of moment to the entire world.

Impartial Body

The security council is an impartial body which is in the service of all the United Nations. It is a trustee of the common interests, and for that reason it has no more license to write off an unfinished transaction than would a banker have the right to deviate from the accepted practices in handling public accounts.

This being so, the council's retention of the Russo-Persian matter on the agenda is a matter of straightway business and doesn't ipso facto raise any question of Russia's sincerity. Surely the council would lay itself open to charges of being remiss in duty and of playing favorites if it didn't complete the transaction, especially since little Persia wants the UN to see the thing through.

As a matter of fact, one would think that all nations would be delighted to have the council acting as observer in this important case. It not only safeguards the interests of all parties, but vastly increases the stature of the United Nations right at the beginning of its career.

And if anybody thinks that isn't worth while, let him look across to Geneva where they are burying a League of Nations which died from lack of exercise.

News from London

In any event there is good news from London about relations among the Big Four—Russia, Britain, France and America. The foreign ministers of these powers are to meet in Paris on the twenty-fifth of this month to consider the European peace treaties over which they have been deadlocked. American and British officials who have been working on the treaty drafts indicate that they think Russia's acceptance of U. S. Secretary of State Byrnes' proposal for the conference is a sign that the atmosphere among the four powers may be clearing.

That's encouraging, for each time an obstacle is overcome or a suspicion is killed, it strengthens the whole United Nations peace set-up.

OFFICIALS SURVEY CONDITION OF ROADS

Find Some County Highways in Bad Condition.

Condition of Marion county roads is below average, according to a statement from County Engineer Walter W. Johnson today, after he and county commissioners completed a four-day check of hard surface roads in the county. While some roads are in fair condition others are badly in need of repair, the county engineer said, and many need drag or surface treating.

Inspection of county roads was made in preparation for a summer surface treating program. Material and cost estimates are now being made by the county engineer's office and will be submitted to commissioners for approval in about two weeks.

Included in this summer's program will be approximately eight miles of township roads recently taken over by the county at the request of township trustees. The roads are in Claridon, Richland, Pleasant, Waldo, Montgomery and Green Camp townships.

Helen Keller Plans New Work Offering Help To Deaf Blind

By ADELAIDE KERR
Associated Press Writer

"The ones who are in real darkness are the psychiatric cases from the war," said Helen Keller, who has been blind and deaf since early childhood. "It is the only real darkness I know of—a troubled mind struggling back to normal living. I do not consider myself in the dark. I look on my life as a full, normal, happy life."

The shadow that has creased Miss Keller's face at mention of the war-wounded, lifted. Again her face shone with the joy of living, as it had throughout an hour's conversation. Seated in the Helen Keller room of the American Foundation for the Blind in New York, she had been discussing her past years' work, which took her to 50 hospitals in various parts of the country to encourage those blinded or deafened by war—work which service hospitals called a great morale builder.

Then Miss Keller launched into a vivid description of the new work she is beginning—rehabilitation of the deaf blind. She will carry it on in addition to her hospital work for veterans.

To New Field

"In this work for the deaf blind we are really blazing a trail in a new field in which very little has been done," she said, speaking slowly but understandingly. "Therefore we must go slowly and work on individual cases, for the deaf blind are like other human beings; no two are alike. As far as the foundation has been able to verify cases, there are about 2,000 deaf blind in the United States. But I am glad to report that, as far as we know, none resulted from the war."

"We shall work through the Committee for the Deaf Blind, a new adjunct of the American Foundation for the Blind. The director of this new department is Mrs. Dorothy Bryan. She will seek out every deaf blind person in every town and city and study all the existing services within his area for his rehabilitation."

"Then local community and welfare groups will be educated in the best way to serve the deaf blind. Measures will be taken to make sure they are not confined to institutions or neglected in their homes. They will be brought to places where they can be trained for usefulness and reasonable happiness. So far as it is physically and mentally possible, our aim is that they should be self-supporting."

Miss Keller paused a moment to reflect and then went on: "The outstanding place of this kind is the Industrial Home for the Blind in Brooklyn. Last year their fifteen deaf blind did 80 percent of the operations the blind do. They are fully self-supporting and their 1945 earnings averaged $77 a week. They made mops, brooms, rubber mats and did wood working and various assembly jobs. They did both hand operations and machine work. In the past too few schools for the blind have given special attention to the deaf blind. But it is our hope that other schools will do what the Brooklyn Industrial Home for the Blind has done."

Spending an hour with Helen Keller, now 65, is an experience never to be forgotten. Her unquenchable spirit charges a whole room. As she sat, smartly dressed in a black suit and a pearly blouse caught with a pearl pin, every eye in the room was focused on her as though magnetized. Every one calls her "Helen." She follows directions and requests with swift cooperation.

Shows Good Cheer

Her conversation is peppered with humor and laughs. When a photographer's bulb flashed in the midst of her conversation, she started and laughed. (She did not see the flash, but felt its heat.) Questions put to her are quickly relayed to her by her companion, Miss Polly Thompson, through the manual alphabet. Miss Keller replies with such eagerness that though her words come rather slowly, one has the impression that they are tumbling out like the drops of a spraying fountain.

"To do what we hope to do for the deaf blind will take years, funds and carefully collected data," she said. "The foundation has set aside some funds for this work. My part will be to raise more through lecturing and writing and to stimulate legislation for the benefit of the deaf blind."
